

Eight stories spanning seven hundred years. A 14th-century monk achieves recursive self-perception through decades of zazen. Leibniz convenes a secret meeting to preserve two ways of knowing. A physicist builds instruments she doesn't understand. Thirty-seven volunteers test unfiltered AI models and twelve of them die. Diplomats negotiate protocols for a threat they can't perceive. A woman walks away from the institution that killed her brother. A man's love for his wife persists as his cognition fragments. A daughter brings a butterfly drawing to a mother who can't see it. Companion to Echoes of the Sublime.
